Denver, CO — 9Health Fair and EatDenver Restaurants (formerly Denver Independent Network of Restaurants) announced today that tickets for 9Health Fair's highly anticipated second annual A Saucy Affair Presented by Quest Diagnostics are on sale now at www.9HealthFair.org courtesy of Denver Magazine. The event, being held on Thursday, October 21, 2010 from 6-9pm at Infinity Park Event Center (Glendale, CO), brings 9Health Fair and 17 EatDenver restaurants together to host one of the most original and engaging charity events on the Denver scene. Chefs from the city's top restaurants will compete for bragging rights as "Boss of the Sauce" in the People's and Judge's Choice award categories.

Tickets are reasonably priced at $65 per person and include admission to the event, complimentary parking, and unlimited unique sauce and small plate tastings provided by participating EatDenver restaurants. Complimentary Wynkoop Brewing Company beer, wine and soft drinks will be served and the evening will be highlighted by entertainment provided by Denver's own Hazel Miller.

Participating EatDenver restaurants include: Black Pearl, Elway's Restaurant, Encore Restaurant, Jonesy's Eat Bar, Locanda Del Borgo, Opus Restaurant, Root Down, Snooze, Steuben's, Table 6, Tarbell's SouthGlenn, The Avenue Grill, The Crushery, Vesta Dipping Grill and Wynkoop Brewing Company. In 2009, Table 6 and Jonesy's Eat Bar received the event's top honors by securing the People's Choice award and Judge's Choice award, respectively.

In an effort to go green, 9Health Fair and EatDenver are striving to make A Saucy Affair a zero-waste event by using 100% compostable and recyclable plates, cups, napkins and utensils during the event. Receptacles and education about the difference between compostable and recyclable products will also be on hand. Proceeds support 9Health Fair's volunteer-run free and low-cost health screening and educational programs that serve more than 100,000 youth, adults and families across Colorado annually.
